

COLLEGE OF SAINT MARY

EARN YOUR DOCTOR OF PHYSICAL THERAPY

College of Saint Mary's Doctor of Physical Therapy program is the leading expert in hybrid education.

At College of Saint Mary, you can graduate with a Doctor of Physical Therapy degree in 2.5 years. Through a collaborative learning environment, our innovative curriculum is designed to connect you with top healthcare professionals throughout the nation. You will be surrounded by a network of confident and diverse individuals who are making a difference.

- Learn from a hybrid model with core faculty that are certified in online instruction. This learning approach offers you the opportunity to study from a location convenient to you and your life circumstances while attending on-site program sessions throughout the year.
- Students complete two 16-week, full-time clinical experiences in both medically-complex and community-based settings.
- Our DPT faculty consists of more than a dozen scholars and clinicians from around the U.S. All hold doctoral degrees, and several have advanced clinical certifications representing a variety of specialty training areas.
- DPT faculty have built an inclusive learning community where students learn to advocate for health equity and understand the challenges patients are facing.

Learn from nationally recognized, award-winning faculty who are focused on your success

With a national average annual salary of $91,010, physical therapy is a high-demand career

Students have the opportunity to go into medically underserved and economically marginalized communities to learn and provide care.

We're being very intentional in developing practitioners who are transformational leaders in local care.
